Churches building, expanding

Five major Canyon churches, with memberships totalling nearly 4000 persons, are expanding this spring in almost timed sequence.

New construction, renovation and congregational moves have been spurred by growing church memberships as well as the peril that construction costs will continue to skyrocket.

Construction is almost complete for the First Presbyterian Church here on a block of land between 18th and 19th Streets and 9th and 10th Avenues.

The Rev. Baldwin Stribling, pastor, said the two-year project will reach completion in early April when the congregation plans to move to new quarters. The current church is at 14th Street and 5th Avenue.

Planning for construction of the $300,000 church began in congregational committees two years ago, Stribling said. Bids were let for construction last summer and Tom Badrow Construction of Amarillo is building the structure.

Stribling said the church will include a sanctuary to seat about 300 persons in the round, a Christian education building with 17 classrooms, a fellowship hall with kitchen and a library.

An administrative wing is to be added to the site at a later date.

The moves of two local churches are contingent on the finalization of construction for a new Central Church of Christ for Canyon.

Dwyane Dennis, minister, said the church has purchased about 4½ acres of land in the eastern section of Pioneer Estates in the city to locate the new church.

Construction is expected to begin in three to four weeks on the building, which will be of colonial architectural design.

The congregation hopes to move into the new building next fall.

Included in the new church will be an auditorium to seat 750 persons designed to be expanded to seat 1000. A classroom facility for 1000 will also be constructed along with teachers' workrooms, printing room, administrative offices and library. A fellowship hall for 300 will be built along with a kitchen.

A small chapel to seat 75 for weddings and funerals will be built on the site.

Construction cost is expected to be about $400,000 for the new church.

When construction of the Church of Christ is complete, the congregation of the First Christian Church of Canyon will move into the old Central Church of Christ building at 4th Avenue and 21st Street.

The First Christian congregation has purchased the old building, according to the Rev. Terry White, pastor.

The congregation of about 100 plans to remodel the interior of the church upon moving.

The old First Christian Church Building has been traded to the Central Church of Christ as part of the purchase.

Members of the First United Methodist Church of Canyon are currently holding meetings with architects to complete designs for a new expansion effort for that church located at 19th Street and 4th Avenue.

Dr. Kenneth Laycock, chairman of the building committee, said plans currently call for a three-phase, long-range building program.

The first phase will include construction of a new sanctuary, office area, library, parlor and classroom facilities. The new facilities will be added to the west of the existing church building.

Construction costs for the initial phase are expected to be near the $400,000 mark, he said.

Laycock said the congregation hopes to let contract for construction in June with completion sometime around Easter of 1975.

The congregation of the Danyon First Baptist Church is planning a new construction and renovation project.

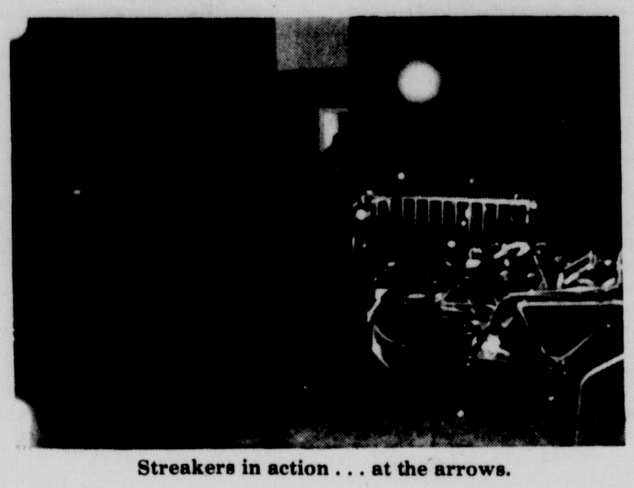
Bare streakers strike WTSU



Streakers in action . . . at the arrows.

Maybe they should be swallowing goldfish or stuffing into telephone booths.

But, the latest craze to hit the West Texas State University campus here is a form of free-time passing called "streaking," and it's caught on not only here but apparently across the county.

Their anatomies laid bare except for, in some cases, ski mask and shoes, male students at West Texas State are waiting for darkness to fall and then they're running through campus.

The first streaker was seen Tuesday night on campus, according to Security Chief Jim Passons. Wednesday night, he struck again, heading between two girls' dormitories.

Thursday night, the streakers struck in trio and even called an Amarillo television station to come to Canyon to film the exercise.

Immodesty was the attire Wednesday and Thursday as the streakers donned only shoes for their races. And, Thursday night quite a crowd of coeds watched the performance from their Cross Hall balconies.

Amy Ford, a student at Gene Howe School, was one of several participants Friday in a patriotic program staged by the school's third graders. The group will present the program again at 1:30 and 7 p.m. Monday at the school and they'll bring the show to Canyon at noon Friday for a performance before the Canyon Kiwanis Club.

Nation's economic problems seen affecting crime rate in county

The ravages of inflation with its spiraling retail prices has spurred an equally spiraling rise in crimes against property in Randall County, Dist. Atty. George Dowlen contended last week.

Dowlen said the nation's economic ills have spawned a rapid increase in the number of persons participating in burglaries, thefts and the writing of hot checks.

"As of the first of March this year as opposed to the first of March of 1973, our case load has increased 69 per cent on the cases we've filed," Dowlen said. "The increase is due in part to increased population, of course, but it's also due in part to the economy."

Dowlen said virtually all the increase in the number of cases filed in his office since Jan. 1, have been attributable to crimes against property such as thefts, burglaries, forgeries and hot checks.

"I feel it has to be due in part to the inflation we are experiencing," he said. "Inflation has caught up with us and especially the people on fixed incomes."

Dowlen said a brief study of the property crimes this year indicates most of them were committed by persons who fall in the category of people who are on salaries or fixed-type incomes.

Dowlen has also found that the percentage of those committing crimes who are employed is rising.

"We are finding that a far greater percentage of the people who are committing the offenses are employed somewhere whereas in the past it's been a situation where the unemployeds make up the bulk of offenders," he said.

Dowlen said those who are committing the crimes are probably taking home an income of between $400 and $500 per month.

He said the thefts, burglaries and hot checks center around the offenders' desires to have "just ordinary items such as food, clothing and in some cases money."

Dowlen recited a typical story as told by one man charged with writing hot checks:

"He was a construction worker who was laid off work for about two weeks and then got the flu and then the mumps and consequently after all was said and done, he was out of work for about two months. He wrote several hot checks. He said he had no choice, he just couldn't handle it."

While the rise in case load has been due to the new offenders, Dowlen said the old-line hardened criminals are still at work but their crimes remain at a more-or-less constant level.

While Dowlen may feel the economy is causing a percentage of the increase in crimes against property in the county, he admits the county's economy is benefitting from the rise in crime.

"The only real beneficiary of all this has been the county," he said.

So far this year, the county court coffers have been enriched by $6710, more than twice as much in fines and court costs than was paid during the same period in 1973.

Curiously enough, while burglaries, thefts, forgeries and hot checks have been on the increase, Canyon merchants have reported no significant increase in the number of shop lifting incidents detected in their stores.

Part of the answer to that riddle may be the long-standing policy of Justice of the Peace W.

Area farmers eyeing sugar beet possibility

Strong prices and recent research efforts have spurred interest among Randall County farmers in the possibility of growing sugar beets this summer.

County Agent John Brazzil said only a handful of farmers have grown sugar beets on limited acreage in the past, but a new market attitude could spur more widespread interest in the county this year.

"Strong prices for sugar and research and grower experiences indicating good sugar yields under limited irrigation are increasing grower interest," Brazzil said.

He said several farmers who heretofore have not grown sugar beets have made inquiries about planting the crop for this summer on a small basis. Interest in the past has been limited, he said, by hauling problems as well as by the fact that farmers here are more oriented toward growing of grain crops such as wheat and sorghum.

But, recent research and the experience of several growers in the Umbarger area indicate Randall County has as good potential for sugar beets as does Deaf Smith County.

And, the prices now offered may make sugar beet growing more attractive, he said.

"At present prices an acre of beets yielding in the range of 20 to 22 tons per acre with a sugar content of 15 per cent will gross about $600 per acre," he said. That price compares with a gross of about $350 per acre for grain sorghum grown under good conditions in the county. Of course, Brazzil said, sugar beet planting costs more for production than does sorghum.

Besides the economic gain from beet growing, Brazzil said beet tops "are choice cattle feed and fit in well with wheat and stalk field grazing in winter months."

One reason many farmers have been reluctant to go into sugar beet farming, Brazzil said, is the belief that a vast amount of water is needed to grow the crop.

"Beet growers in the Panhandle have learned that water requirements are much less than once thought," he said. "Several growers in west Randall County are now producing beets in the limited water area and using no more irrigation than normally applied to summer crops such as grain sorghum. The growers have learned to think in terms of sugar production rather than in total yields of the raw beet."

In addition many growers have discovered that under a good crop rotation system the residual fertility in the soil is adequate to grow beets without adding additional fertilizer, he said.

Brazzil said research data on beet growing is available from Dr. Steven Winter at the Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland.

Area economic need for interstate to be eyed

The economic impact an interstate highway running from Amarillo to Las Cruces, N.M., would have on the area will be the major factor weighed by federal highway officials when they decide whether or not to designate U.S. 60 a part of the federal interstate system.

City Manager George Loudder, who along with three other area representatives attended a meeting on U.S. 60 Friday night in Roswell, N.M., said two federal highway officials said at the meeting that cities should begin gathering facts and statistics on the economic feasibility of an interstate highway.

Loudder said federal officials will be working to achieve a cost-benefit ratio as a major part of their decision-making process to determine whether U.S. 60 should be an interstate.

Representatives of more than 20 cities along the current route of U.S. 60 met in Roswell to get an update on federal plans for the highway. Canyon and Randall County officials have been working with other Texas and New Mexico cities on the route designation for about a year.

Loudder said the two federal officials who spoke at the meeting indicated they will need statistics and information verifying the kind of economic impact an interstate highway would have on the area along the route.

He said they were initially impressed with the amount of agricultural movement over the current highway system and particularly the movement of feed and cattle to the various feedlots in the Panhandle.

Loudder said Canyon's economic feasibility study will center on student commuters to West Texas State University, on the need for rapid transport of feed and cattle to the county's two major feedlots and on the location of Canyon at a cross roads of U.S. 60 and I-27.

The city manager said the cities along the U.S. 60 route must compete with cities along 10 other routes in the United States for the interstate designation.

If, he noted, the economic impact on the area of an interstate

City complex emerges as lone campaign issue

Construction of a new city hall complex emerged as the central election issue last week in an almost issue-less city commission race as a Canyon woman tossed her hat in the ring on a platform which stands for a vote on the construction effort.

Mrs. C. S. Thompson, who lives in east Canyon, filed Thursday afternoon to run for place 3 on the commission, the place held by Commissioner H. R. Fulton, Jr.

Filing deadline was Friday afternoon with all three incumbents filing for re-election and two challengers seeking their seats on the city board.

Mrs. Thompson told The News Friday she has been circulating a petition among Canyon residents to halt construction of the new city hall complex until local residents have an opportunity to vote on whether or not they want to build the structure.

"It's our money and we should have the right to say how it will be used," she said.

Mrs. Thompson, a native of the Amarillo area, moved to Canyon in 1935 and has run the Buffalo Cleaners here since 1956.

She said she favors "good government within a fixed budget with lowering of minimum service charges for water and sewer."

Another challenger, Charles Sykes, will appear on the ballot, but he has not yet made the city hall complex an issue in his campaign.

Incumbents Fulton, Jim Christopher and Mayor Manly Bryan face re-election this year. Bryan is unopposed in his bid.

The candidates will draw for places on the ballot at 2 p.m. Monday at city hall. Absentee balloting in the city race begins March 13. Election will be April 6.

Three more days remain for candidates to file for election to the Canyon School Board or the South Randall County Hospital District Board.

Filing deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday for both boards.

Those wishing to file for election to the school board must Robena Johnson, left, Alisha Nelson, Lynn Davis and Carla Ratliff were named members last week of the All-State Tournament Team in Girls Basketball. Miss Ratliff and Miss Davis were named to a similar team following the state tournament last year. The naming of four Canyon Girl Eagles to the all-state squad marked the first time for Canyon that four players have been named to the team. In the past, three local players have made all-state teams. Miss Johnson is a sophomore forward, Miss Nelson is a senior forward, Miss Davis is a senior guard and Miss Ratliff is a senior guard.

Petitioner defends honesty of effort

The Canyon businesswoman who's spearheading a petition effort to call a vote on construction of a new city hall said Friday she's never made any untrue statements about city funding of the complex.

Mrs. Mary Parker told The News she's not spread any untrue statements about the city's effort to build a new complex and said her petitions have explained in themselves why the issue should be put to a vote of the electorate.

Mrs. Parker's statements were in response to city commissioner charges in the Thursday News that several untrue statements have been made by petitioners in an effort to get people to sign the petitions.

She said she felt her honor was impugned by city commissioners in an effort to belittle the petition effort.

Mrs. Parker would answer News questions only in writing and had not given a written answer by late Saturday as to when the petitions will be

Hearst Kidnapers Sadistic Felons

By ANN BROWN

Hundreds of trucks and thousands of men scurrying around to do the bidding of a handful of sadistic desperadoes is a spectacle Americans never expected to see.

And howling mobs fighting in the streets over food is an incredulous sight in any civilized society, especially when they are well dressed and appear quite well fed.

When a free people cannot protect themselves, suppress crime, or maintain order, they are no longer gree. Anarchy brings the man on horseback in short order.

Drug addiction is the most potent threat to the survival of this mighty nation. The social order that has delivered the greatest good to the greatest number of people in history is being brought down.

The drug that is destroying America is not marijuana, alcohol, heroin, nor LSD — but the oldest of habit-forming drugs, SFN — the illusion of getting "Something For Nothing."

The kidnapper, skyjacker, armed robber, common thief, and wily politician are all addicted to the same character-destroying drug, SFN.

The dramatic display of the Hearst family handing out free food is as futile as it is ridiculous. Suppose the Hearsts could give $70 worth of food to every poor person in California, what would it accomplish?

If every rich man in America were to liquidate his holdings and convert them into food for the poor, it would at best feed the poor for a few days. Then what?

With the liquidation of the holdings of the rich men would go the jobs for millions of workers. Which would be to the poor man's advantage, a steady job — or a few good meals?

The idea that one can get something for nothing is the short-sighted, immature philosophy of the adolescent. And any nation that takes its adolescents seriously is in trouble.

How many adults are proud of their adolescent conduct, ideas, or ambitions?

The stock answer of the immature youngster when questioned concerning an unreasonable request is, "because I want it."

Any man who gets something he does not earn, gets it at the price of his self respect.

Personal self respect is the material out of which national honor is made.

National Honor is like a rope composed of many strands.

The act of placing money on the counter of one blind news dealer is a strand in the fabric of national honor as much as is integrity in international treaties involving the lives of countless millions of people.

If we want to remain a civilized nation, each of us must assume our responsibility of weaving as strong a strand as possible into our rope of honor.

The destruction of any nation begins with the erosion of the principles upon which that nation was built.

America was built on "liberty and justice for all."

What is just about depriving an innocent young girl of her liberty, and her father of his legally acquired wealth?

How then can any person who claims the honor of being an American participate in this monstrous shakedown?

Any contribution from donating food for the give away and helping in its distribution, to fighting like dogs over it in the streets, is aiding and abetting the kidnappers who have deprived Patricia Hearst of her liberty.

The perpetrators of this heinous crime are obviously enjoying the ludicrous spectacle of frightened multitudes dashing about in a vain attempt to appease the blackmailers' sadistic appetites.

Blackmail usually ends in violence or death.

Which will it be, death for terrorists — or violence and destruction for America?

Streaking, Shrieking

By CARROLL WILSON

Streaking appears to be the latest fad for bare-bottomed college students down on the campus, but shrieking is still the all-time favorite sport for their bare check-booked elders down on the square.

While streaking is apparently a way for idle students to let off a little pent-up steam, shrieking is the best known antidote for fiscal frustration.

Streaking may have its funnier moments, but shrieking is serious business.

Lest Mary Parker and her friend petitioners think I'm making light of their effort to call a plebescite on the construction of a city hall complex, I'll state at the outset that I, too, believe Canyon's citizens should be allowed a vote on the question.

But, I do see certain — and I'll admit I've stretched a bit for them — parallels between the latest male student craze and the newest chapter in the shrieking saga.

To my way of thinking, any male who'd go as far as baring the particulars of his anatomy to frolic outside girls' dormitories is not less than authority defier of the year.

He's also trying to attract some attention. He wants to be seen.

To an extent, he's asserting his individuality. He's no number, this fellow with bare bottom bounding shrubs in the moonlight.

(The preceding assume, of course, that he's not (a) drunk (b) without a date and bored or (c) riding out a $100 bet.)

So much for the streaking side of the parallel.

The shriekers are we of the faceless mass who pay a ransom for gasoline, take home ever smaller wages, cuss Nixon for paying less income tax than the average welfare recipient and generally feel as naked and defenseless against government as a streaker with the cops at his heels.

We shriekers are tired of electing common men to government positions only to find that the mantle of office seems to carry with it the apparent crown of knowledge.

Was a public official ever elected who did not come to believe he knew more about what was good for the people than the people themselves?

Was a public official ever elected who did not claim ultimate virtue because he knew "the broad picture?"

Public officials virtually beg defiance, believing as they inevitably do that they are the true mechanics — both hand and wrench — of government.

The shrieker believes, alternatively, that America means what it stands for — that he is to be the hand which manipulates the elected wrench to turn the wheels of government smoothly.

When the shrieker learns that in all too many cases the elected wrench begins to turn the hand while government works itself, he becomes defiant and feels he must do something to turn the wrench around — even if he must go so far subconsciously as the pugilist of the chimp world or the campus streaker when they bare their bottoms at authority.

The shrieker is compelled to remind the governors that he is an individual, an integral part of the system of government. To do so, he must attract attention to himself.

In Canyon, fortunately, the city fathers back in the 1950s saw to it that local residents had devices to check elected powers over and above the device of the once-a-year vote.

Within the city charter are included three basic democratic devices through which Canyon residents may participate directly in their own government. The devices are initiative, referendum and recall.

The device being used currently by those of the population who feel they've been ignored by the decision-makers is initiative and Mrs. Parker et al have circulated petitions calling for city commissioners to halt plans for construction of a $1.2 million civic center complex. They seek, rather, a vote on the issue, a vote allowing the electorate of Canyon to make known to commissioners whether they do or do not desire the city to spend $1.2 million to build the structure.

I do not know for a fact what those circulating the petitions are telling potential signers. I certainly do not condone spreading of irresponsible statements concerning financial capabilities of the city to handle the construction costs.

Neither do I see, however, the financial aspect of the building as the major issue. While the petitioners may well have intended to base their petition on grounds that the city can or cannot afford to construct the building, I believe the basic point is being overlooked.

I must proceed on the assumption that the city can indeed afford to build the complex without raising taxes or unduly taxing the existing funding arrangements for the usual city services.

My point is this, and I must take a bit of space to develop it:

(While it is not germaine to this discussion, I want to point out that city commissioners did make the decision to build the new complex behind closed doors and in executive session.)

Construction of the new city hall complex was spurred by a windfall of some $500,000 in federal revenue sharing money — money expropriated by the government from you and I and then returned for local useage by governments closer to the people. The avowed assumption of Mr. Nixon in returning funds to local governments was that local priorities would be met without the arbitrary bureaucratic decision-making and allocating process.

While Mr. Nixon did alleviate the bureaucratic decision-making and allocating process by returning $500,000 to Canyon, he had no way of knowing that the decision on how to spend that money would be almost as arbitrary.

I have advocated from the beginning that cities and counties like Canyon and Randall County which have no real need for revenue sharing money should bundle the money up and send it back.

But, more realistically I have also advocated that both governmental units form citizens committees to study ways to put the money to best use and then make recommendations to the city and county commissioners.

The people, I think, should have a direct say-so in how they want a large sum of money spent. The $1.2 million to be laid out for construction of a city hall complex is sufficiently large to warrant input from the electorate.

Men of good will will recognize that while they have been elected to represent the people as lawmakers and decision-makers, certain issues virtually demand scrutiny by the electorate.

Citizens have had no input in the construction of the city hall.

Men of good will will also recognize that if a number of citizens desire to have the issue brought before the people in an election, a denial of that desire based on the procedural argument that their petition does not meet specific requirements is the manifestation of a sorry kind of arbitrary rule.

While I believe Canyon city commissioners are basically men of good will and men of good intentions, they are, after all, only men, and I think they made an initial mistake by not allowing citizens participation in planning the expenditure of the revenue sharing money.

Shriekers, like streakers, may be asserting individuality in a seemingly self-propelled system, but at least shriekers, unlike their campus counterparts, are not the ones who must face expulsion from the system.

Letter To The Editor

Some Students Have No Guts

Mr. Wilson:

The Editorial "In Pursuit of Justice" in this Sunday paper was noted with considerable interest.

True, this unfortunate incident happened after such a fine performance by one of the most outstanding choirs in this part of the country, or for that matter in the State of Texas.

Those students who were involved, and their parents, realize and admit that this was a most regrettable occurance, and one of which neither the students nor their parents are proud. This was an incident which we feel could have been avoided with better sponsorship and better planning by those responsible for the trip. But, the students and parents involved freely admit that some sort of censure should have occurred, perhaps not to the extent that it did, but, here again, those involved and their parents are doing their best to cooperate with the School Administration and the School Board.

We as parents are very proud of our choir and the great honor they were given, and we hope that in no way will this incident overshadow the much larger achievement of the group.

HOWEVER, WE BEG TO DIFFER WITH YOU ON ONE POINT. . .

It was stated that this was a "60 member choir," that "23 members of the choir were involved" and that "there were 37 members of the choir who were not involved in the escapade," and that this observation was made "merely to set the record straight and in the interest of justice."

IN ORDER TO SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT AND IN THE INTEREST OF JUSTICE TO THESE 23 STUDENTS. . . We as parents of those involved would like to make the following statement:

"There were 23 ADMITTED members of the choir who were involved. There were some students who did not have the guts to stand up and tell the truth, and as a result, there are some students in the choir who are letting these 23 bear the punishment, not only for themselves, but for the ONES WHO COULD NOT BRING THEMSELVES TO TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT THEIR INVOLVEMENT."

As parents of these 23 students, although as stated earlier, we are not proud of the incident, we are proud of the fact that you could at least be truthful and suffer the consequences of that act, and as your parents we are proud of the maturity you showed. MAYBE YOU 23 ARE BECOMING RESPONSIBLE ADULTS AFTER ALL.

School Week Fetes Set

Chili suppers, spelling bees, art shows and musical concerts are among the activities planned by the Canyon schools in conjunction with Public Schools Week, slated Monday through Friday throughout the state.

Activities planned at Rex Reeves Elementary are topped by the PTA Chili Supper, slated from 5-8 p.m. in the All-Purpose Room. PTA officials report that 340 tickets have been sold in the community. Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and students, and 50 cents for pre-schoolers. Proceeds will go toward purchasing playground and other equipment for the school, a spokesman said.

In conjunction with Public Schools Week, Rex Reeves is also spotlighting the art work of its students. Exhibits of student art are currently on display both in the school as well as the Randall County Courthouse annex. The shows will hang throughout the week, said Vondine McGregor, director of elementary curriculum in the Canyon public schools.

At noon on Tuesday, the school will host members of the Canyon Rotary Club. The sixth grade choir is scheduled to perform a concert for the Rotarians.

On Monday, the contest to determine winners of the Spelling Bee in the fifth grade will be held at 8:45 a.m. in the Rex Reeves All-Purpose Room. Winners in the sixth grade bee held this week were Danny Green, Terry Kinney, Dale Harper, Mona Crawford, Doug Davis and Ken Johnson. The six winners, along with the five finalists in the fifth grade contest will attend the Randall County Junior Bee, slated Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Spelling bee competition is also being conducted at Gene Howe Elementary in conjunction with Public Schools Week. The school will be sending seven winners to the Randall County Junior Bee, a spokesman said.

Gene Howe's Public School Week activities are highlighted by a Patriotic Program to be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Cafetorium. The same program will be presented at noon Friday at the school, when the Canyon Kiwanis Club members will be special guests.

Events at Canyon Junior High School also include spelling bee competition, as well as an Open House for parents slated from 7-9 p.m. in the cafeteria. Entertainment for the Open House will include presentations by the seventh grade, eighth grade and ninth grade choirs.

At noon Tuesday, CJHS will host one of the Canyon civic clubs.

Canyon High School kicked off its observations of Public School Week Friday with an Open House for Parents followed by the premiere of the CHS musical, "No, No Nanette."

Students took final examinations all this week and Monday, the first day of Public Schools Week, will mark the beginning of the third and final quarter at the school.

Kudos To Schools

Dear Editor:

My Congratulations and Appreciation to our School Superintendent, Mr. Jerry Jacobs, our school board, to all teachers and personnel associated with our Canyon School District. To be so identified for your accomplishments is indeed a "compliment of the highest order." And should be thus recognized by each tax payer in our Canyon School District.

Accrediting Team Applauds School

The climax for West Texas State University of an eighteen-month critical self-study and visitation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools committee to check the results has passed.

For four days, the eighteen members of the committee discussed "Overview: West Texas State University Self-Study 1973" among themselves, and with WT faculty, administration and students, to compare their findings with the report.

The Southern Association team visitation occurs every ten years to reassess, as in WTSU's case, its accreditation in the 600-member system. Accreditation facilitates the transferring of credit hours from one school to another, while maintaining an high quality academic excellence.

The committee's findings were given verbally to WT President Lloyd I. Watkins in a private exit interview Feb. 27. The formal written results will not be presented to him for several months.

"While I am not at liberty to report on specifics, the Southern Association visiting team commended the excellence of our faculty and our student body during the exit interview on Wednesday," Watkins said. "A number of very kind remarks were offered about the high morale on our campus, and I am therefore optimistic concerning the contents of the final written report.

"I am deeply grateful to the faculty, administration and students who worked so diligently on the presentation of our institutional self-study," Watkins continued. "I am especially grateful for the superb work done by Dr. Ron Huffstutler, WT mathematics department, who served as its director."

"I do not believe that it would be any breach of confidence to relate that many members of the visiting committee told me that they have never had finer accommodations or a warmer welcome than they received in this area from WTSU," Watkins concluded.

appear at the superintendent's office at Canyon High School.

Those running for election to the board of the hospital district must file a petition with 10 names with either Ray Grimes at Neblett Hospital or with Mrs. Nolon Henson.

The three incumbents on the Canyon School Board have filed for re-election. They are Roscoe Richardson, Ed Wieck and Board President Tom Keeling. No challengers have yet filed.

One challenger has tossed his hat in the ring for election to the hospital board. E. T. Cummings has filed for election. The three incumbents have also filed. They are Mrs. Henson, Floyd Tomlinson and Raymond Batenhorst.

School board election and hospital board election will be in early April.

presented city commissioners for action. She also had not yet responded to how many signatures have been collected on the petitions.

"The intelligent citizens who signed this petition were perfectly capable of reading and understanding it without any other influence," she stated in a written release. Her statement included a reiteration of the language used in the petition which calls for commissioners to halt plans for construction of a city hall until citizens can vote on the issue.

"As a Christian citizen I do feel a duty to become involved, knowing the disastrous results of lack of general knowledge by the public in other places," she wrote. "The only rights left to the citizens of Canyon under the Home Rule Charter are those of initiative, referendum and reacll. If these last rights are denied, the Charter becomes the creator of a police-state monster. If we are still living in a democracy, the people have the right to vote."

Mrs. Parker said the complex construction if it included those things planned in preliminary design phases such as a tree-lined mall and a community center would be exhorbitant to finance.

City commissioners issued a statement for publication last Thursday which contended that misinformation had been circulating concerning the financial ability of the city to pay for the complex.

The statement said primarily that the city is able to afford the construction due to revenue sharing funds and a large surplus in the water and sewer fund.

The Rev. Bill Foil, pastor, said current plans call for construction of a new education building just north of the current church structure at 4th Avenue and 17th Street.

The new building will house classroom space for the pre-school, children and youth divisions along with a fellowship hall, kitchen, library and youth all-purpose room.

The current auditorium building which faces 4th Avenue will be renovated under current plans and expanded.

Foil said plans call for construction to begin shortly, hopefully by the first of the summer.

Following completion of the education building, construction will commence on the auditorium remodeling project.

is greater than the cost of construction of the highway, the program could possibly be funded.

New Mexico representatives agreed to be on hand March 19 when a public hearing will be held by the Texas Highway Department to determine support for the project. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the district courtroom in Hereford.

Congress passed a law recently requiring the state highway departments to make studies of the feasibility of upgrading existing highways and U.S. 60 was included in that bill.

Canyon representatives at the Roswell meeting Friday were Loudder, City Commissioner Willis Harrison, County Commissioner Paul Lindsey and former County Commissioner Glenn Dowlen.

Baby Girl For Kuhlmans

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kuhlman of Canyon are the parents of a baby girl, born Jan. 30 at Neblett Clinic. Deborah Nicole weighed 7 pounds, 13 ounces at birth and was 19½ inches long.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Bailey of Amarillo and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kuhlman of Canyon.

"Wake Up To Sonshine" Unfolding This Week

A three-day, evangelistic "thrust," highlighted by musical, dramatic, and comedy presentations will be held Monday through Wednesday on the West Texas State University campus.

"Wake Up to Sonshine," the title of the all-campus "thrust" will feature programs beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening. Testimonies will be given by faculty and students at each session, a spokesman said.

Topping the roster of personalities scheduled to appear at the event are Charlie Baker, associate director for administration, supervision and programming in the student work staff of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Grady Nutt, a humorist, musician and author.

Nutt, a native of Amarillo now residing in Louisville, Ky., has numerous performing credits, including TV appearances, after-dinner speaking engagements, college concert dates and Baptist conventions throughout the country.

A former youth minister at the First Baptist Church of Waco, he has also served as minister of music in a Louisville church, as well as pastor at the Graefenburg Baptist Church in Graefenburg, Ky. He was assistant to the president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary for five years upon his graduation from that institution in 1964.

A 1957 graduate of Baylor University, Nutt is the author of a humorous book entitled "Being Me: or Self, You Bug Me!" He has also written numerous magazine articles and has recorded an album, "The Flip Sides of Grady Nutt, Humorist."

In addition to his comedic talents, Nutt plays half-a-dozen musical instruments, including ukelele, tiple, guitar, banjo, dulcimer and piano.

Nutt will be featured on the Tuesday program and the Westwind Singers, a WTSU musical ensemble directed by Steve Garms, will perform at the Wednesday session.

The West Texas State University Symphony Orchestra will present its first concert of the spring semester at 8 p.m. Monday in the Branding Iron Theatre.

The concert includes works by composers Nicholas Rimsky-Korsakoff, Joseph Haydn and Aaron Copland. Conductor is Michael Matesky, assistant professor of music.

"Russian Easter Overture" by Rimsky-Korsakoff will open the concert. Written in 1888, the overture, according to Matesky, "is a very big, brilliantly-colored orchestra piece." The piece "contains a variety of moods, beginning slowly and mysteriously and becoming quick and agitated."

Haydn's "Symphony No. 102," one of 104 symphonies written by the Austrian composer, is an "unduly neglected" piece, according to Matesky. "We think it has a lot of humor in it, and we have a lot of fun with it," explained the conductor.

Selections from Copland's "Rodeo" will close the concert. Copland was commissioned to write this work by the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, says Matesky, to create a Western ballet for the 1942-43 season.

Originally entitled "The Courting at Burnt Ranch," "Rodeo's" theme is "how to get a suitable man," says Matesky.

The first movement, "Buckaroo Holiday," "Saturday Night Waltz" and "Hoe-Down" will be performed by the WTSU orchestra.

The concert is open to the public at no charge.

Campus police were expecting action Thursday night but were unable to catch the three streakers. They did catch four "mooners," male students who were driving through campus with their uncovered bottoms displayed in the car window. Those four were turned over to Dean Weldon Trice for disciplinary action.

Passons, noting that university action can take the form of localized discipline or formal filing of charges, came up jokingly with an antidote of his own.

"If caught," Passons joked, "I'm thinking about bringing them over to my office just as they are where they're going to sit all night until the next morning and then I'm going to march them over to Dean Trice's office and he's not going to wonder why they're there.

"You can't destroy the evidence. The evidence is evident."

Crime. . .

A. "Bill" Wilson, who ran for office on a platform of sticking shoplifters with maximum penalties.

Wilson has pledged to charge shoplifters who plead guilty or who are found guilty with the $200 fine plus court costs.

"You'd be surprised how that slowed them down," he said.

Students To Give Program On Patriotism

The third grade students of Gene Howe School are staging a special patriotic production called Sing Out America and performances are scheduled Monday and again Friday.

The third graders of Mrs. Gerry Woodward, Mrs. Jerrie Langen, Mrs. Nynvia Mills and Mrs. Margie Phillips will present their program at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the school and again at 7 p.m. for the Gene Howe PTA. They will give a performance at noon Friday for the Canyon Kiwanis Club.

Black Theologian Cites Unity

"The Bible says with simplicity and clarity that those who oppress the poor shall be exiled."

So says James H. Cone, one of America's leading black theologians and the author of "Black Theology and Black Power," who spoke Friday at West Texas State University.

Dr. Cone, a member of the faculty of New York's Union Theological Seminary, says that the white man must stop his oppression of the black man.

"The black church must teach the art of survival, that is to remain alive without the loss of dignity," says the eminent author.

Stating that the black has come this far by faith, Dr. Cone says that the black existence must not be taken for granted.

Dr. Cone relates his theological experience directly to what he calls "the Bearden, Arkansas experience."

He grew up in the town of a few blacks and 800 whites.

"We were expected to enjoy plowing the white man's fields, mowing the white man's lawns, and if we expressed displeasure we were called 'uppity niggers,'" says Dr. Cone.

"We were constantly put in our place, beaten by the town cop, put in the stinking jail, and sent to separate but so-called 'equal' schools," recalls Dr. Cone

"Sitting in the balcony at the show, drinking from the colored water fountain, were activities that were expected, and we could not retaliate," said the minister as he spoke on reconciliation.

Dr. Cone said that the black had no last name, only a first name, and after the age of 65 received "the dubious honor of being called uncle or auntie."

He describes the whites in the small Arkansas town as all so-called "Christians" who were church going, but excluded the black from the church.

"We did not retaliate for fear of bodily harm," says Dr. Cone.

"Expression springs out of environment, as Richard Wright, the poet wrote, and my theology is not an abstract intellectual expression, but comes from my blood," explains the black mar. who has been named an "Outstanding Educator of America."

Dr. Cone contends that reconciliation or liberation of the oppressed has not occurred.

He asks the questions of "Why are white racists still being elected to political office, and how can blacks take seriously their unity in Christ when there is no unity in politics or religion?"

"I refuse the view of reconciliation that pretends slavery never existed, because how can we forget we were lynched and shot. We can't, we dare not forget it," says Dr. Cone.

"The only limit we put on oppression comes from our power against it," explains Dr. Cone.

Dr. Cone says that reconciliation must come through the divine reality and the human reality.

"God's act of reconciliation was created when he took the side of the weak, the oppressed, and we must accept our liberation through God," says Dr. Cone.

He emphasizes that such reconciliation frees the black from principalities and powers that enslave them.

Dr. Cone describes the human side of the reconciliation.

"The oppressed must accept freedom, and join with God in the fight for freedom and santification," explains the scholar.

What Can We, The People, Do To Save America?

The SAD TRUTH is that the United States is on the verge of becoming a DICTATORSHIP. It is also true that we cannot expect our legislators in Washington or Austin to save us from imminent SLAVERY. However, the ordinary CITIZENS of this nation can take matters into their own hands, and PREVENT our own FEDERAL GOVERNMENT from enslaving us.

An important meeting will take place from 10:00 A.M. to 2:30 P.M. on FRIDAY, March 8, at the Quality Inn Motel in Amarillo. This meeting is being sponsored by the Panhandle County Judges and Commissioners Association. Representatives of twenty-six counties in the entire Panhandle of Texas will meet on this date. We, the citizens of these counties, must get busy and WRITE LETTERS and MAKE TELEPHONE CALLS TO THE FOUR COUNTY COMMISSIONERS AND THE COUNTY JUDGE in EACH of these counties, and tell them that WE WANT THEM TO PASS A JOINT RESOLUTION at the meeting on March 8 in Amarillo. This resolution would URGE the Texas Legislature TO DECLARE REGIONAL GOVERNANCE (for example, the PRPC) UNCONSTITUTIONAL AND ILLEGAL because this system is DESTROYING OUR FREEDOM.

Potter County officials: County Judge Branch Archer, Potter County Courthouse, Amarillo. Commissioner Thad Ansley, 2034 S. Washington, Amarillo. Commissioner Earl Johnson, 3800 E. 14th, Amarillo. Mrs. Harvey Dellis
nee Rene'e Wilkinson

Wilkinson, Dellis Exchange Vows

Miss Rene'e Wilkinson and Harvey Dellis exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Polk Street Methodist Church Chapel in Amarillo, with the Rev. Dr. Walter Browers officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wilkinson of Lake Tanglewood.

The groom is the son of Mr. John T. Dellis of Amarillo.

The sister of the bride, Mrs. Ronnie Morrow of Amarillo was matron of honor for the wedding. Miss Dana Loewenstern of Austin and Miss Pam Lawrence of Amarillo served as bridesmaids for the ceremony.

Each attendant wore long yellow satin dresses with lace cuffs and collar. They carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

Best man for the wedding was the father of the groom, John Dellis. David Wilkinson, the brother of the bride and Ronnie Morrow, brother-in-law of the bride served as groomsmen.

Early American Crafts Discussed At Meeting

The domestic arts and crafts of America were the focus of a lecture Monday at the meeting of the Sue Hite Club, and in conjunction with the talk, a number of outstanding manifestations of folk arts wrought by local members and their ancestors were on display for the event.

Mrs. Alma Perkins was featured speaker for the session, which was held in the North Gallery of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

Although the handiwork of American craftsmen was executed mainly out of necessity utilizing the available tools and raw materials, much of it achieves a high esthetic, Mrs. Perkins said.

Mrs. Perkins discussed such handicrafts as quilting, knitting, weaving, rug-making and embroidery and lace-making in her lecture.

Examples of these as well as many other types of needlework and crafts were on display for the meeting. Some of the works were rare heirlooms dating back to the early 19th century.

The wedding is scheduled for June 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Amarillo.

The bride to be is a second year student at Amarillo College. She is a member of the Badger Belle Drill Team at Amarillo College, and is president of the Home Economics Club at the college.

The prospective bridegroom is presently enrolled at West Texas State University and is majoring in business finance. He is a former student of Amarillo College.

Fledgling Girl's Swim Team At WT Vying For State Championship

West Texas State University's women's swim team, with only a month's practice behind it, will be in Edinburg today to compete for the state championship title.

Coach Bruce Bove believes the girls "are going to do real well. I think they'll finish in the top five."

The WTSU aquatic team, organized in late January, will compete in the Texas Conference of Intercollegiate Affiliated Women's Swim Meet at Pan American University against 15 other Texas colleges and universities.

The team "has been practicing for a month, and they're pretty close to being in shape," says Bove. Team members have been working out four days a week with Bove, and "working on their own the other three," he explains.

Bove, a teacher at Austin Junior High School in Amarillo and swimming and diving coach for the Amarillo Public Schools, has been donating his time to help the WTSU men and women's swim teams "get started."

Five of the 12-member women's swim organization will travel to Edinburg.

El Paso sophomore Jan Welch, a former winner of the AAU Lille Kniep Award as "Outstanding Female Swimmer" in Texas, will lead the novice squad into the Pan American competition. A former winner of the El Paso Hall of Fame "Athlete of the Year" and the El Paso Mayor's Award, Miss Welch has been swimming competitively since she was 11. She holds world rankings in the 200,400,800 and 1500 meter freestyle in 1971, and she qualified for the American Olympic Trials in 1972.

A freestyle specialist, Miss Welch will swim backstroke on the medley relay and compete in the 100, 200 and 400 yard freestyle events at the state meet.

Jackie Stephens, Pampa sophomore, a past member of the Pampa Dolphin Swim Team, will anchor the medley relay and participate in the spring freestyle and breaststroke events.

Odessa senior Nina Tucker, captain and the team's "top breaststroker," according to coach Bove, began swimming experience in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Tucker has been competing for 11 years. She swam for the Odessa Aquatic Club for five years and captained the Permian High School squad her senior year.

Dee Dygert, Midland freshman, swam for the Midland Swim Team and Midland High School. She was a member of Midland's All American and All State Medley and Freestyle relays in 1971, and she won All-District honors in 1972.

Miss Dygert will swim the butterfly leg on the medley relay and compete in the individual medley and freestyle contests.

The fifth member of the traveling team is Amarillo sophomore Marilyn Clack. Miss Clack, a breaststroke and freestyle specialist, has participated in the Amarillo Aquatic Club program.

Karen Johnson, WTSU legal counsel and former AAU swimmer, will act as sponsor and coach for the Edinburg trip.

Both the men's and women's swim teams will participate in the dual meet with Midwestern University March 25 at the West Texas State pool.

County To Talk Annex Plan

County commissioners will meet again Monday with Art Vaughan, Amarillo architect, to continue discussion on plans to construct a new South Amarillo courthouse annex.

Commissioners meet at 1 p.m. on the second floor of the Canyon courthouse.

Vaughan presented preliminary sketches last Monday which commissioners trimmed severely to keep within a projected $300,000 construction budget.

Commissioners will also discuss Monday whether to amend their personnel policy to include an item which would require all newly-hired employees to undergo a physical examination.

Jimmie Nail, an Amarillo surveyor, will meet with the court to discuss a survey of property in dispute of ownership in the north part of the county.

WT Teaching, Leaders

A pair of West Texas State University faculty members have made an interesting discovery: leadership can be taught.

"The myth we had to fight hardest," says professor of education Dr. Jack Nance, "was the one about born leaders. We now know there is no such thing." Nance and Assistant Dean of Women Mary Lou Farnum have reached that conclusion at the end of a six-week Leadership in Higher Education Seminar.

Nance and Farnum picked 30 of the top student leaders for the sessions. The students met weekly in a one-of-a-kind classroom situation.

"We know of no other course like this in the state," says Miss Farnum. "It is a radical approach to leadership problems. The kids learn first hand the duties of both a leader and a follower."

During the night sessions, the students were given projects to help them develop communications with their peers. The students also had their homework to do. Each one got a project pertaining to some phase of leadership. The project had to be completed before the next session.

Another unique feature was the "contracting" for a grade. The students and teachers got together at the beginning of the course to map out an individual study project. The amount of work the student proposed to put into the project determined his grade. If he lived up to the terms of the contract, he gets the grade bargained for.

The students involved in the Phase I effort wound up their studies mid-week, Feb. 26, with a banquet. One of the interested observers at the banquet was university president Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins.

Dr. Watkins observed that the leadership course has proved that "we're not so big that we cannot involve ourselves in working together." He also commented that the leadership program was preparing the students for a life beyond the university.

Watkins had a minor surprise for the student leaders. He told them of plans to include students on standing committees in the university as voting members.

"We're not going to use you on committees because it is popular," he said, "but because we need your input for a better West Texas State University."

Another round of Leadership I is planned for this semester with a possible Phase II in the offing for next fall.
